A selection of articles will also be provided on the portal.

It is essential that students purchase this textbook and bring it with them to classes each week. Tutorial exercises from the book will be needed for class and some assessment will be based on the textbook content.

Organisation and Teaching Strategies

The course consists of a two hour lecture, a one hour tutorial and a one hour workshop each week (see Weekly Teaching Schedule).

The course is designed to introduce you to issues in work and employability. The course integrates and draws on the disciplinary content of both industrial relations and human resource management. You will be introduced to the content of the course through the lectures, however the lectures are intended only as introductions to the course content and you are expected to complete the required reading in the course. Demonstration of reading will be required in the case debates, the professional portfolio, and the final exam.

In addition, the course is designed to develop your skills in analysis and criticism as well as the synthesis of a cogent argument.

An introduction to fundamental themes in work and employability is provided early in the course and these are applied in case debates. The case debates are designed as formative exercises to develop your understanding, application, analysis and criticism. You will participate in one case debate as a member of a debating team.

You will be required to demonstrate analytical and writing skills in a more detailed and extended form in the professional portfolio and in the case component of the final exam.

Academic Integrity

Griffith College is committed to maintaining high academic standards to protect the value of its qualifications. Academic integrity means acting with the values of honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility in learning, teaching and research. It is important for students, teachers, researchers and all staff to act in an honest way, be responsible for their actions, and show fairness in every part of their work. Academic integrity is important for an individual's and the College's reputation.

All staff and students of the College are responsible for academic integrity. As a student, you are expected to conduct your studies honestly, ethically and in accordance with accepted standards of academic conduct. Any form of academic conduct that is contrary to these standards is considered a breach of academic integrity and is unacceptable.

Some students deliberately breach academic integrity standards with intent to deceive. This conscious, pre-meditated form of cheating is considered to be one of the most serious forms of fraudulent academic behaviour, for which the College has zero tolerance and for which penalties, including exclusion from the College, will be applied.

However, Griffith College also recognises many students breach academic integrity standards without intent to deceive. In these cases, students may be required to undertake additional educational activities to remediate their behaviour and may also be provided appropriate advice by academic staff.

As you undertake your studies at Griffith College, your lecturers, tutors and academic advisors will provide you with guidance to understand and maintain academic integrity; however, it is also your responsibility to seek out guidance if and when you are unsure about appropriate academic conduct.

In the case of any allegation of academic misconduct made against a student he or she may request the guidance and support of a Griffith College Student Learning Advisor or Student Counsellor.

Please ensure that you are familiar with the Griffith College Academic Integrity Policy; this policy provides an overview of some of the behaviours that are considered breaches of academic integrity, as well as the penalties and processes involved when a breach is identified.
