Brief Course Description

Introduction to Public Relations is a 10 Credit Point course situated within the second trimester of the Diploma of Media and Communication. The Diploma of Media and Communication is designed to provide students with a pathway to:

- further university studies in the Media and Communication disciplines, or
- direct employment.

This course introduces students to the theory and practice of public relations in the business, government and third sectors. The course establishes an understanding of the industry as a whole and the importance of a knowledge base in the fields of research, writing, presentation, law and ethics. It examines public relations as a part of the mass media communication process and as a vital management function.

Rationale

Introduction to Public Relations enables the learner to develop foundational knowledge of a variety of ways that public relations professionals can communicate their messages and perspectives to others - within a university or business context.

Aims

Introduction to Public Relations aims to provide students with an understanding of the theory and practice of public relations. A primary purpose is also to ensure students have a sound understanding of research, writing, presentation, law and ethics as they relate to the field of public relations.

Learning Outcomes

After successfully completing this course you should be able to:

1. identify the role of public relations across the business, political and community sectors;
2. identify the importance of research, evaluation and clear communications within public relations activities;
3. apply ethical and legal principles to effective public relations practice;
4. identify and analyse the elements of a public relations campaign;
5. recognise the importance of, and apply, effective team work in a public relations context.

Texts and Supporting Materials

Required Text:

Johnston, J & Sheehan, M (Eds.). (2014). Public Relations: Theory and Practice (4th ed). Sydney: Allen & Unwin

Recommended Resources:

A comprehensive list of recommended resources can be found on the course website.

Organisation and Teaching Strategies

The teaching program will consist of lectures, tutorials and workshops. In addition, the course is supported by web-based material which provides an outline of the course content. Please note however that this is supporting material only and is not intended to be a substitute to attending classes. Guest lectures will generally not be posted on the web.

Some time in tutorials/workshops will be devoted to assignment work on assessment items. The end of trimester test will be based on lecture material and the text.

Class Contact Summary

Classes for Introduction to Public Relations include the following:

- Lectures: 1 hour per week (week 1 – 12)
- Tutorials/Workshop: 3 hours per week (week 1 – 12)

Attendance

100% attendance is expected for all classes. You are reminded that your attendance in class will be marked for all elements. To receive full attendance, you must be present in the classroom on all occasions. You are expected to bring work done at home to class for group and individual discussion. Further development of ideas is expected during tutorial time.

Preparation and Participation in Class

You are expected to read your textbook and the lecture notes plus attempt any tutorial/workshop exercises before class so that each week you can actively contribute to your learning and the learning of others in your classes. You are expected to ask and answer questions and to initiate discussions and stimulate debate in group and class situations.

Consultant Times

Attendance during consultation times is optional but you are encouraged to use this extra help to improve your learning outcomes.

Course Materials

Lecture notes will be made available to you on the Learning@Griffith College website and you are advised to print these out and bring them to each class so that extra notes can be added.

Independent Study

Independent study requires that you spend time outside classes engaged in research necessary to complete your assignments. Research includes reading the required textbooks, and using library and internet facilities. For this 10 CP course, you will need to spend at least 10 hours per week engaged in activities that will help your learning and fulfil the course objectives. Thus, provided you have well used the formal contact hours each week, you would then complete any remaining hours engaged in independent study.

Program Progression

You are reminded that satisfactory program progression requires that attendance in classes is maintained at equal to or greater than 80%, and that Grade Point Average (GPA) is maintained at equal to or greater than 3.5 in any trimester [please see Griffith College Policy Library - Program Progression Policy - for more information].

When discussing the case study students should draw on the textbook and at least two other academic sources. Provide the campaign website/link in the introduction. Ensure your case study topic is approved by your tutor to avoid heading into areas such as marketing and advertising. The case study can be current or recent, but must be based in Australia. This assessment is a report. Use the following headings Introduction, Goal, Target public/s, Strategy, Key message/s, Tactics, Reference list. You must include a minimum three references, two of which must be scholarly peer-reviewed publications. In-text referencing required. The written report of the PR campaign will be 1500 words long and will fully develop and polish the original work from the class presentation (there may be substantial changes to the original campaign if you decide). The report will also include an executive summary, in text citations, a reference list with 8 references of scholarly peer reviewed publications. Academic Integrity

Griffith College is committed to maintaining high academic standards to protect the value of its qualifications. Academic integrity means acting with the values of honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility in learning, teaching and research. It is important for students, teachers, researchers and all staff to act in an honest way, be responsible for their actions, and show fairness in every part of their work. Academic integrity is important for an individual's and the College's reputation.

All staff and students of the College are responsible for academic integrity. As a student, you are expected to conduct your studies honestly, ethically and in accordance with accepted standards of academic conduct. Any form of academic conduct that is contrary to these standards is considered a breach of academic integrity and is unacceptable.

Some students deliberately breach academic integrity standards with intent to deceive. This conscious, pre-meditated form of cheating is considered to be one of the most serious forms of fraudulent academic behaviour, for which the College has zero tolerance and for which penalties, including exclusion from the College, will be applied.

However, Griffith College also recognises many students breach academic integrity standards without intent to deceive. In these cases, students may be required to undertake additional educational activities to remediate their behaviour and may also be provided appropriate advice by academic staff.

As you undertake your studies at Griffith College, your lecturers, tutors and academic advisors will provide you with guidance to understand and maintain academic integrity; however, it is also your responsibility to seek out guidance if and when you are unsure about appropriate academic conduct.

In the case of a breach of academic integrity made against a student he or she may request the guidance and support of a Griffith College Student Learning Advisor or Student Counsellor.

Please ensure that you are familiar with the Griffith College Academic Integrity Policy; this policy provides an overview of some of the behaviours that are considered breaches of academic integrity, as well as the penalties and processes involved when a breach is identified.
